Rabbits are the bunnies of the Chinese zodiac. Socially, the Sign is extremely popular and has a wide circle of family and friends. Its compassionate nature leads it to be very protective of those it holds dear. Rabbits dislike arguments and other conflict and will try anything to avoid a fight.

Where romance is concerned, the Rabbit's sentimentality can lead it to idealize relationships. The rabbit often ends up giving more of itself to a partner than is realistic or healthy. Rabbits love to entertain at home and always make sure their house is comfortable and tastefully-furnished.

Being a delicate Sign they need a solid base in order to thrive. Lacking close, supportive friends and family, the Rabbit might just break down in tears at the first sign of conflict

Intellectually, Rabbits tend to move through life's lessons at their own pace;

What Rabbits need most is a stronger sense of self-worth and the security that comes with it. Their discerning natures, coupled with some hard-won assertiveness, will help these happy creatures go far.
